
FOOTBALL now takes a back seat until next fall.

And that's probably a good thing.

A number of happy homes were probably ready to crack up because of the overdose of gridiron activities over the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Some of the gals we know took a dim view of the marathon TV viewing that went on, for example, on New Year's Day.

Except for a brief breather when Huntley and Brinkley took over, there were nine hours of straight football... and there was one game that overlapped.

As much as we like the game, we must admit that was overdoing it a wee bit.

And then there was the famous mud battle in Kezar the next day when the two Campbell kids, Jack Schraub and Craig Morton, slid to glory.

Plus a pro game the next day.

Yup, that's a lot of football, no matter how you look at it, even on TV.

CRAIG AND JACK will be honored January 21 at a civic banquet with the high school, City of Campbell and Chamber of Commerce as joint hosts.

We think this is fitting, for those two grid warriors certainly did their part in publicizing their school and community by their unprecedented act.

The dinner was planned before the East-West game in which a pass from Craig to Jack in the last minute wrapped up the game.

There is no doubt, in our mind, that the East-West game will go down in history as the greatest mud battle ever staged. It would not be fair to describe it as a football game.

Still in no way does it detract from the fact that the two local football stars, who went through grade and high school in Campbell and then on to star at Cal, really demonstrated their ability.

The civic banquet which will be held in the high school cafeteria is also sort of a send-off affair.

Jack and Craig have both been signed by Dallas and this community will be watching with interest how they make out against the bruisers who play for keeps.

We think that Dallas should be represented at the civic banquet in a big way.

As a matter of fact, we think the Dallas people would be anxious and eager to participate.

To use that overworked phrase, it could "help their image".

Auto agencies help cities pay their bills

BY GEORGE VIERHUS

Cities, such as Campbell, that have no automobile agency within their city limits definitely are handicapped when it comes to the financing of the services offered to their citizens.

That was revealed in a startling manner by the third quarter report of taxable retail sales in California by the State Board of Equalization, for the cities derive one per cent of the sales tax collected.

Automobile agencies are the biggest single source of sales tax revenue in the state.

Those cities without this source are obviously hurting, fiscally speaking.

So Campbell is hurting.

The report revealed that during the third quarter taxable transactions came to $8,549,000 in Campbell.

Of this total figure, "motor vehicle dealers and auto supplies" supplied $57,000. The report shows that there are four such outlets (auto supplies) in Campbell.

But in Los Gatos. Wow!!

During the same period the total taxable transactions in Los Gatos came to $10,900,000, about $2 million more than Campbell..

BUT..in Los Gatos where there were 15 outlets for "motor vehicles and auto supplies" this category amounted to $6,327,000 of the total sales for that one period.

WHAT IT MEANS

What does this mean to the coffers of the two cities in dollars and cents?

In Los Gatos it means that the city received $63,000 in sales tax revenue in one quarter from dealers in cars and auto supplies.

In Campbell, a paltry $570 was netted from the same category in the same period.

Or to say it another way.

The sales tax income derived from auto dealers in Los Gatos in one year would pay for the entire cost of the operation of either Campbell's police or fire department.

Fortunately for Campbell, in face of these awesome auto figures that are the rule rather than the exception throughout the state, this city is in a favorable position in two other categories for taxable retail sales.

OTHER SOURCES

The top one for Campbell is listed under "building materials". The report lists 15 such outlets in Campbell which includes Western Gravel and the lumber yards.

Famed pro grid star to speak at civic banquet

Eddie LeBarron, now an attorney in Reno but formerly an All-American at Pacific and later a star as quarterback for the Dallas professional football team, will be the principal speaker at the Craig Morton-Jack Schraub civic banquet on January 21.

And those who want tickets for the event honoring Campbell's touchdown twins better hop to it, Robert Culp, high school principal and chairman of the affair, warned this week. The cafeteria only holds 300 persons. Tickets sell for $2 per copy and can be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce, the Campbell Press or the high school.

The banquet, which will be held in the Campbell High cafeteria, is jointly sponsored by the City of Campbell, the Chamber of Commerce and Campbell High School, the alma mater of the two gridiron greats.

Culp said he was pleased that LeBarron had accepted the invitation to speak which was tendered by Billy Wilson, another former Campbell grid star, because both Morton and Schraub have announced they have signed professional contracts with the Dallas Cowboys, LeBarron's old team.

Bud Foster, well known Bay Area radio announcer, will be the master of ceremonies for the banquet. Foster is familiar with the two football stars as he was the University of California announcer when

Controversey ends

City acquires new park site from water district

Campbell and the Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation District this week ended their tug-of-war over a 10-acre parcel of reclaimed Los Gatos Creek land. And both sides were satisfied over the outcome.

Campbell will get a new park site and SCVWD will be able to sell the 10-acres to the highest bidder.

As a result of a joint meeting between the City Council and the directors of the water district, Campbell will purchase from the district approximately seven acres of land adjoining the 10 acres. This parcel can be filled and developed into a park, experts claim, more suitably than the 10 acres and at a cost many times less.

The district will retain the controversial 10 acres of land which has already been filled and compacted. The acreage will be sold to the highest bidder by the district and then developed under the city's watchful eye with proper zoning restrictions.

The SCVWD directors were willing to sell the 10 acres to the city but at a cost of approximately $200,000 or $20,000 per acre.

The seven acres, however, will be purchased at $2,050 per acre or $15,735 for the whole bit. The district also will allow the city to work out a lease purchase agreement over a three year period.

Although the seven acres right now are nothing but "a hole in the ground", it offers much more frontage along the man-made lakes (percolation ponds) in the area than the 10-acre of compacted land. It also is accessible from Dell Ave. which eliminates any need for developing streets into the area which will be necessary in the 10 acres.

The agreement worked out by the two agencies also specifies that the SCVWD will furnish the dirt to fill the seven-acre hole, although the city must transport it to the site. No compacting is necessary for developing of park land, it was pointed out.

The hassle started when the water district announced that 10 acres of the 100 acres of land that had been purchased along the creek for percolation ponds was in excess of what was needed and would be sold for industrial purposes at an asking price of $275,000. The district had expended an estimated $90,000 in filling and compacting the parcel.

Campbell officials felt that the land should be retained for park purposes. When it was ascertained that the money could not be raised either by the city or the county the city moved to rezone the area.

Under the mutual agreement hammered out by the two bodies, the city will withdraw the 10 acres from the proposed new zone for creek land and rezone it for use mutually agreed upon.

Building permits take $3 million drop in 1964

Building in Campbell during the 12 months of 1964 lagged far behind the record-breaking year of 1963.

Permits in 1964 were $3,331,201 below the high water mark of the previous year. In 1963 the permit total was $8,306,969 compared to $4,975,768 for last year, according to the figures released by W. L. Morser, city building official.

Unlike 1963 when permits in May exceeded $2 1/2 million and in March more than $1 million, no month in 1964 hit the million dollar mark. The top month was July with $752,000 in permits.

In December, 1964, the total was $116,614 compared to $159,110 for the same month in 1963.

The largest single permit in December was issued to Morris Burman for an addition for $31,200. Two single family residence permits were issued, one to Cecil Venturella, 181 Midway, for $26,188 and the other to David Sanches, 410 N. Harrison for $15,000.

Bud Thomas was issued a permit for a restaurant-cocktail lounge at 1545 W. Campbell, for $19,340 for the only other major construction during the month.

Other permits for the month included: B. Crill, 20 S. Union, addition, $500; W. T. Ellis, 370 Calado, addition, $1,500; Shell Oil, 2006 Winchester, sign, $800; Grant W. Naylor, 1700 W. Campbell, signs, $636; Hubbard and Raskin, 536 Salmar, addition, $800; Jim Bohna, 120 S. Hunt Way, addition, $550; Bud Thomas, 1545 W. Campbell, sign, $275; Vernon L. Hudson, 997 Smith, foundation, $700;

Douglas Sandberger, 114 S. Dot, fire damage, $2,000; Campbell Water Co., 555 W. Campbell, addition, $7,500; First Baptist Church, 400 Llewellyn, remodel, $4,800; Frank Fezzolare, 1171 Virginia, foundation, $700; Leona Meyer, 52 Circle Drive, cabana, $75; Kirkwood Plaza, 1650 W. Campbell, sign, $2,200; Wolf's Den, 1545 W. Campbell, sign, $1,200; John S. McIntosh, 184 N. Victor, addition, $600.

Editorial

Auto agencies help

Since receiving the report of the State Board of Equalization pertaining to the taxable retail sales in California for the third period, we have spent considerable time studying the figures contained therein.

They are extremely revealing, as the news story which appears in this issue indicates.

Basically the report shows that automobile agencies, because of the tremendous sales tax collected on the sale of cars, play a major role in financing the services rendered by cities.

Conversely then the figures also reveal that a city without a car dealer of any sort is handicapped in this respect.

And, as most of you know, there is no such agency in Campbell.

That Campbell has been able to maintain a relative high standard of services despite having no auto agencies within its limits is a remarkable achievement.

This has only been possible because sales tax income from firms handling building materials (Western Gravel and the lumber companies) and home furnishings (Breuner's) in Campbell is far above the average of such activities.

Campbell, thus, is fortunate in that respect.

But where the figures really put one into a state of shock is when a comparison is made of Campbell with other cities in the amount of taxable transactions involving car sales and allied services.

Los Gatos, for example, had taxable sales in this category during the third period of $6,327,000, representing 60 per cent of the total sales in that town. This means that the Town of Los Gatos received $63,000 in sales tax income for that quarter from this field alone, based on the one per cent that goes to the cities.

Campbell had $57,000 in this bracket for the same quarter which means $570 income to the city.

Quite a difference!

And the comparison becomes even more shattering when other cities are brought into the picture as Los Gatos has developed an outstanding "Auto Row".

Merced, a city with almost the same population as Campbell (21,000), had $3,414,000 taxable sales from motor vehicle sources during the third period.

Cupertino, with 9,000 people and one of our neighbors, had $750,000.

Delano, where City Manager Bob Stephens was before coming to Campbell a year ago, had $1,140,000 and Delano has only 12,000 in population.

Los Altos, a city that compares with Campbell in population, had $1,425,000.

Santa Clara had $6,262,000 and Santa Cruz had $4,555,000 while Mountain View showed $3,060,000 and Sunnyvale $6,625,000.

Compared with Campbell's total of $57,000 during the same period, the figures really become a little frightening.

We maintain that every citizen should be interested in what these figures mean. And not just because it will be easier to buy a car, if there was a car agency in town. It is obvious that when a city such as Los Gatos can pick up more than $250,000 per year from car and auto parts deals made within that city, it becomes important to every taxpayer within the city.

That $250,000 income would pay for the operation of the fire department for one year in Campbell.

It is also obvious in our book that a concentrated move should be made by the Chamber of Commerce, with the material backing of the City Council, to explore every possible means at their command to entice, cajole, or invite automobile agencies to locate in Campbell.

We admit this is easier said than done. We concede that there are such things as franchises and other problems to overcome.

But it seems so illogical, with Campbell's burgeoning population, that our town has been avoided like a plague by car dealers in the past.

It seems to us that the city officially might be able to make it so inviting that some of the road-blocks, whatever they are, could be removed.

In our opinion, it is worth a try.. in a big way.

Park commission meets Thursday

Campbell's Park and Recreation Commission will meet Thursday, Januray 14, at 8 p.m. with Vice-Chairman Mrs. Betty Grizzle presiding. Frank Kukuk, newly-appointed member, will take office at the meeting.

Kukuk replaces Jack Kelly, former chairman, who has resigned from the commission because he has moved from the city. A new chairman will be named at the meeting.

Among the matters to be discussed by the commission will be the type of signs that should mark the city parks.

need of improvement.

The blame for the gaps that often appear is not easily placed... The fault often lies with all the agencies concerned.

This was glaringly revealed recently when the City of Campbell appealed to the county Board of Supervisors to overrule the decision of the County Trafficways Committee.

The committee had denied Campbell's request to have Rincon and Latimer go through when the San Tomas Expressway is constructed.

Before Campbell's letter of appeal had been received by the board, the supervisors had already acted on the matter. They affirmed the Trafficways ruling. And Campbell officials had not been notified that the matter was even on the agenda.

County officials were of the opinion that Campbell had been receiving the board's agenda in the mail and thus would have noticed that the matter was going to be up to bat.

To the board's credit, it must be admitted that the supervisors gave Campbell a hearing at the next meeting even if it didn't change their decision made the previous week.

But one good thing did come out of the hassle.

Campbell city officials are now on the list for the supervisors' agenda.

In fact, if they hadn't been, they wouldn't have known that Campbell was on the agenda the second time.

Someone ought to check the phone connections between the county administrator's office and Campbell's city hall.

Apparently the line must be down.

IRONICALLY, the Campbell Press has been on the mailing list for the agenda of the Board of Supervisors for a long time.

Admittedly most of the time we scan it hastily. Too hastily, apparently. We, too, missed the first time Campbell's infamous Rincon-Latimer case was to come before the board.

But the second time it was a different story.

The four-page agenda we received had one blank page.

We learned before the meeting from City Manager Bob Stephens, who had the complete agenda that Campbell's case was listed on the page that we had drawn the blank.

We hastily add that this was not intentional. The memeograph machine apparently acted up at the wrong time.

THANKS to the Junior Chamber of Commerce the city hall now has a flag pole. We take a little credit for sort of nudging it along. But the Jaycees deserve the commendation for carrying out the project.

An interesting sidelight on the flag-pole situation was revealed by REX KABER, present commander of the American Legion Post and long-time active in post's activities.

Rex recalls that the American Legion post was responsible for acquiring the flag pole at the fire station. He remembers that when the fire station was built, long before the city was incorporated, that no flag pole was included.

Jack Scott, then volunteer fire chief, felt that a pole was a necessity even if there was no money available. He went to the Legion with the problem.

And the Legion came through.

We have always thought that flag poles were an integral part of public buildings. We have examined hundreds of plans for public buildings in our day. They always seem to have flag poles on 'em.

Of course, some of the fancy plans also show trees and cars.

But it is interesting to note that the Legion in one instance, and the Jaycees, in another, took care of the situation in Campbell.

Morton, rated as the number one passer in the country, was picked as All-American and Schraub broke all pass-catching records at Cal. Both were stars at Campbell High and they started tossing a football when they were in grade school here.

The Chamber of Commerce will also make an award to the two youths at the banquet. Bill Oltmann, C. of C. treasurer is chairman of this phase and asks those who wish to contribute to the award to contact him.

Culp also announced that Paul Meyer, the first Campbell High graduate to achieve millionaire status after leaving school, is contributing two Texas hats for the occasion. He also has contacted the Dallas mayor and the Texas governor who will send greetings. Meyer operates his firm in Texas.

Serving with Culp on the committee are Paul Landwehr, secretary-manager of the Campbell Chamber of Commerce, Billy Wilson; Jack Wagnon, dean of boys; and Steve Brydon, student body president.

iod, this category accounted for $1,806,000 in taxable sales. Los Gatos only received $300,000 from a similar group but also with 15 outlets.

In a close second position in Campbell was "home furnishings and appliance stores". This category accounted for $1,646,000 of the total sales of the city. Breuner's leads the way for the 13 local outlets. There were 17 such outlets listed for Los Gatos but they only accounted for $257,000 in total sales in that town.

FOOD STORES

Although Campbell has about 8000 more population than Los Gatos (21,000 compared to 13,000), there are 20 "food store" outlets in Los Gatos.. accounting for $931,000 of the sales in the third quarter while the 15 "food store" outlets in Campbell totalled $727,000.

In Campbell seven drug stores showed total sales of $219,000 while in Los Gatos the 12 such stores came up with $302,000.

Campbell has more service stations (34) than Los Gatos (30).

But Los Gatos stations apparently pump more gas. The 30 stations did $155,000 compared to Campbell's 34 which are $151,000.

In all, the 392 total outlets in Campbell accounted for the total transactions of $8,549,000 for the third period. Los Gatos had 404 outlets. In addition to the (151) retail stores total of $5,929,000 in Campbell compared to (210) retail stores in Los Gatos of $10,097,000, the report listed 241 "all other outlets" for Campbell which totalled $2,620,000 in sales. In Los Gatos 194 "all other outlets" amounted to only $803,000.

In the final analysis, based on the revealing figures of the report, Campbell is just "plain lucky" in having such stalwart sales tax sources as Breuner's, Western Gravel, the lumber yards and food stores.

Without them carrying the freight, things could be a wee bit rough, come budget time at the city hall.

Almost 50 per cent of the total sales transactions in Campbell comes from those sources.

50 PER CENT

In Los Gatos, on the other hand, car dealers account for more than 60 per cent of the total sales in that town. Although the Los Gatos percentage is higher than many cities listed, auto agencies in very few cities drop below 30 per cent of the total sales.

That is, except in those "unfortunate" localities such as Campbell, where there are no such businesses...

That $570 income for Campbell for one quarter in sales tax from auto supply dealers doesn't go very far in the operation of a city the size of Campbell.

Especially in comparison to the $60,000 that Los Gatos received in the same three months.

Such a comparison makes our local city officials sort of shudder--and wonder.

HERE'S WHERE IT GOES--Three officers of the Campbell Junior Chamber of Commerce point out where the new flag pole will be placed on the porch of the city hall. The Jaycees have presented the city with a 32-foot flag pole made of 3-inch pipe tapering to 1 1/2 inch. The pole was constructed by Jaycee members. In the photo, left to right, Jim Pluth, president; Al Hansen, vice-president and Verl Weitzel, director.

Man held as wife-beater

Felony wife-beating charges have been filed against Albert H. Willingham, 34, of 16 Hardy Avenue, Campbell. He was arrested January 6 and booked at the County Jail.

According to a report from the Campbell Police Department a passing motorist saw Mrs. Alice Willingham lying in the street and attempted to assist her. He called the Police Department and the woman was taken to Campbell Community Hospital where she was given emergency treatment.

THAT FEMININE TOUCH

By Dolores Keywood

I recently received a letter from the mother of a seventeen year old girl. The letter was too lengthy to print here, but, part of it read like this.

"Sue (the daughter) does very poorly in school, should be a senior but was held back twice, so she is only a sophomore. She wanted to quit school when she was sixteen and still feels the same way. She is certainly not college material and has very little interest in anything for her future. The only thing she seems to have a talent for, is fixing hair. For the past couple of years, she has done the hair of all our neighbors and friends and many relatives. Naturally, they don't pay her, but because they are so pleased with her work she receives many gifts to show their gratitude. I tell you this, only to prove my point; that she obviously has some talent along these lines. Lately she has expressed a desire to become a hair stylist. I don't know if this is a lucrative field or if there is too much competition. This may be passing fancy with Sue, but it is the only thing she shows any interest in. I know if I inquire at a beauty college, they will tell her all the good things about the trade. After all that's what they're in business for. I respect your opinion and know that you have worked with many people in this business. Please advise me."

Needless to say, I cannot advise any individual on such a matter, without knowing her personally, but I can give you some information about hair styling as a career.

There is competition in every field but there is always room for good cosmetologists and employment is usually available immediately upon graduation. Women want to look lovely twelve months of the year so this is not a seasonal occupation, consequently it can be very lucrative and with some experience there are wonderful opportunities to start your own business.

Hair styling allows one to express her creative and artistic ability, and since women's hair styles change often, there is always something new and interesting to look forward to.

And one of the greatest assets in cosmetology is that a hair dresser can always return to her beauty career after marriage or raising a family.

This is one of the few fields in which a woman can work part time and still do quite well, financially, if she wants to supplement her husband's income without neglecting her home.

Yes, for those interested, the beauty business is a lucrative, interesting, rewarding and above all, respectable career.

Christmas brought to families

Thirty needy families in the Moreland and Campbell Elementary School Districts were given aid in December through the Christmas Exchange Program of El Paradiso Council, 6th District C. C. P. T.

The program, directed by Mrs. George Kinghorn, Welfare Chairman, provided Christmas baskets of food and toys. The junior high schools of the district provided some of the toys through student council projects, while the high Schools in the Campbell District conducted a school-wide Christmas Basket Program working with the Volunteer Bureau for proper distribution.

The Council Clothes Closet has been relocated and is now at the Hamilton Elementary School in the Campbell Elementary School District. The Clothes Closet Program meets emergencies when it is evident that a student needs assistance and such cases are referred to the Clothes Closet Chairman, Mrs. Donald Boltinhouse.

Former resident tells of island enchantment

Campbell Press
Campbell, California
Dear Editor:

I don't know that you will remember me, but one of your subscribers suggested that I send one of these family circulars to you to select from it such material as you think might interest your present readers. I might explain just who I am.

I taught mathematics in the Campbell High for some 14 years--one back in 1906, and then again 1924-37. I was the second president of the Kiwanis Club, president of the Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of the Congregational Church, builder of the library building at the corner of Campbell & Central, wrote a History of Campbell, and was the brother of F. H. Cutting, the artist. I don't suggest that you print all this--just to let you know what persons might be interested to know that Mrs. Cutting and I are in Honolulu, where our son Windsor C. Cutting is now Director of the Biomedical Research Center, a department of the University of Hawaii.

I would not have thought of writing you except for the suggestion.

Yours,
T. A. Cutting

HONOLULU
CHRISTMAS--1964

Six months in Oahu and the islands as enchanting and mystifying as ever. I am still quite unoriented; the north star appears to be low in the south; sun and moon to rise in the West and set in the east. The rains increase--nearly three inches yesterday; mangos are long gone; poinsettias have turned brilliantly red; the great African tulip trees are crowned with red flowers and the ground beneath carpeted with them.

At the Hawaiian Village near the beach with its restored grass houses we found a woman pounding bark into tapa cloth, another kneading boiled taro roots into starchy poi, of which she apparently ate plentifully, for she must have weighed 300 pounds. Visitors lined up on opposite edges of a lawn--men on one side, wahines on the other--and were given a stone disk to roll back and forth in attempts to make it pass between two sticks four inches apart in the middle of the green. None of us kanes could get the disk thru, and so the women won the old game of Hawaii. Near one hut was a native canoe some thirty or forty feet long, shaped from a koa log--a remarkable piece of craftsmanship to have been hewn and polished with only stone implements.

BISHOP MUSEUM

In western Honolulu is the Bishop Museum. One exhibit is a miniature Hawaiian sanctum consisting of a wall surrounding a godhouse, a prayer tower and a sacrificial altar. Wooden idols are posted at the corners of the wall. It tells a whole story. In another room of the museum are the feathered robes of Kamehameha and those of several of his queens and relatives. It required the extinction of a whole species of birds to supply the beautiful plumage. Hanging from the ceiling of the largest room is the skeleton of an enormous sperm whale and the rubber model of a giant octopus. A relief map of the ocean depths shows that over half of the islands of the chain have been eroded until they no longer come to the surface of the water except as coral reefs.

One day a party of us set out for a waterfall at the head of Manoa Valley. The muddy trail followed a stream through growths of wild fig trees, loaded with inedible fruit, mountain apples fifty feet high with an abundance of fruit too green to eat, and guava trees with their yellow fruit covering the ground. Here and there were great koa trunks, rising straight and smooth for a hundred feet, still waiting for the long departed king's men to come and cut them for his fleet of war canoes. An impenetrable growth of hau trees with horizontal, intertwining branches close to the ground at one point blocked the way, but a detour brought into view the distant falls, which in two leaps plunged hundreds of feet down a perpendicular basalt cliff into a rock basin, which we presently found to be at the end of our trail. As I rested upon a large rock, a mongoose came up the path and, at sight of me, turned quickly off into the brush.

VIEW

On other days we circled most of the island, enjoying the views of bays, reefs and waves. Landward were the spectacular thousand foot palisades. In lava caves that led back into the bluff near Diamond Head, archaeologists found stratified layers of deposits containing artifacts of the ancient Hawaiians. A carbon test of charcoal at a fire site on bed rock showed an occupancy of about 1000 years. A multitude of sea bird bones in the deepest layers showed how easy it was in the beginning to obtain food. Shallower layers showed more and more dependence upon sea snails, mussels, clams and turtles as the birds deminished. In the top layers were fishhoods and octopus lures. Pig, dog and chicken bones were found in all layers, evidence that these animals had been brought with them at the time of discovery and occupation.

In places of little rain we could hear the sweep of the wind thru the scraggly brush and imagine it to be the sighing of the lost spirits as described in 1870 by Samuel Kamakau, and firmly believed in by "The People of Old". These spirits, who did not know their ancestral lines, according to him, became aimless wanderers in these barren places where they subsisted upon such spiders and moths as they could catch. They were in great danger, too, of being blown off into Milu, the pit of endless night, one entrance to which was known to be near Cape Kaena, the sharp western point of Oahu. If, however, a person knew and memorized line of ancestors, he would have friends among those who had gone before and would be guided to a proper place of entrance. One of the tricky ones was the rock, Kakukaki, with a flat circle of lava at the summit. Here grew a breadfruit tree with two branches from which souls leaped into the next world. A drop from one branch put a spirit safely among his ancestors, but from the other a landing in Milu, the black pit.

ROYALTY

Those of royal line, as predestined, were given wings and flown to high heaven beneath a full moon and twinkling stars. Those devoted to Pele descended into her volcanic, fiery pit for warmth and security, although to some it might seem to be much like hell. Descendants of the shark gods, wonderful to tell, were taken to the bottom of the sea to dwell in the happy valleys of the deep.

Although Samuel Kamakau was a Christian convert, he firmly believed that knowledge of these realms was learned from those who had died and been returned to life by magic. The bodies of those of shark line, he wrote, often just disappeared after death, carried away by sharks who came up for them from the nearby ocean. He knew of such cases.

To add confusion in supernatural matters, both the Chinese who came to the sugar plantations in 1852 and the Japanese, coming in 1886, brought along their ghosts. Before the close of the century both of these peoples had Buddhist temples in Honolulu, and now there are an estimated 44,000 adherents here. If I understand Buddha (500 B.C.) we are all but the ghosts or reincarnations of our former selves, and if so, it is no wonder this is a wierd island.

In my morning walks I pass trees with great bunches of bananas, towering coconut trees, each with a bushel or two of nuts in clusters; and I finally come to the breadfruit tree near the Chinese cemetary, also well loaded with big green fruit. There I study the inscriptions on the monuments, some in English, some in Chinese characters, but most of them in both languages. In one corner are the graves of many children surrounding the grave of a grandmother, all bearing dates of the same year.

One morning our newspaper carried the report that vandals during the previous night had overturned sixty of the Chinese markers. Not a very happy note with which to close this holiday greeting. But still I can record the more felicitous item that many Chinese enliven their funerals with exploding great numbers of firecrackers, presumably to drive away in fright all evil spirits.

Anyway we wish you Happiness galore Beginning with this Christmas--'64.

May and Theodore.

College board to share cost of traffic study

West Valley College Board of Trustees have voted to share equally with the City of Saratoga the estimated $2,000 cost of a survey to determine possible traffic problems that might ensue when the college locates its first campus in that city.

The study will be made by Wilbur Smith and Associates of San Francisco. The Board previously had elected to purchase a 125-acre site in the vicinity of Fruitvale and Allendale Avenues in Saratoga.

The trustees agreed that the purpose of the study would be to implement site development rather than to have a hearing on the matter of site acquisition, which, in the case of the Saratoga site, was not a matter for reconsideration.

In other actions the Board:

CONFIRMED appointment of a 15-member advisory committee of business, industrial, professional and governmental leaders.

AUTHORIZED payment of overtime to counselors who would have to return for night and weekend work because of the increased student load.

January 8, 1965

APPROVED an amended contract with the Service Bureau Corporation of San Jose for $2551 of additional data processing services, again because of an increased student load.

ENDORSED a legislative program which had previously been endorsed by the California Junior College Association and which would seek to increase state aid to junior colleges to a point nearer the 45 percent visualized in the state's Master Plan for Higher Eduacation.

APPROVED a proposal to buy certain 1965-66 school supplies from the county which, in turn would acquire and warehouse them for several institutions in the county on a pooled bid arrangement.

APPROVED the 1965-66 college calendar which stipulates 176 days of actual instruction with classes starting on September 13.

New students must sign at WV College on January 18

Students entering West Valley College for the first time in the spring semester will be processed January 18 instead of a previously-announced January 25, Don Ziegler, dean of admissions and records has announced.

Registration will continue until January 29. The schedule for new evening students is not affected.

The stepped-up schedule has been made necessary because of a sharp increase in applications over the anticipated rate, Ziegler said. To date more than 500 applications have been received, and early estimates were for 250 to 300 total.

New day students must:

1. File application for admission to West Valley College.

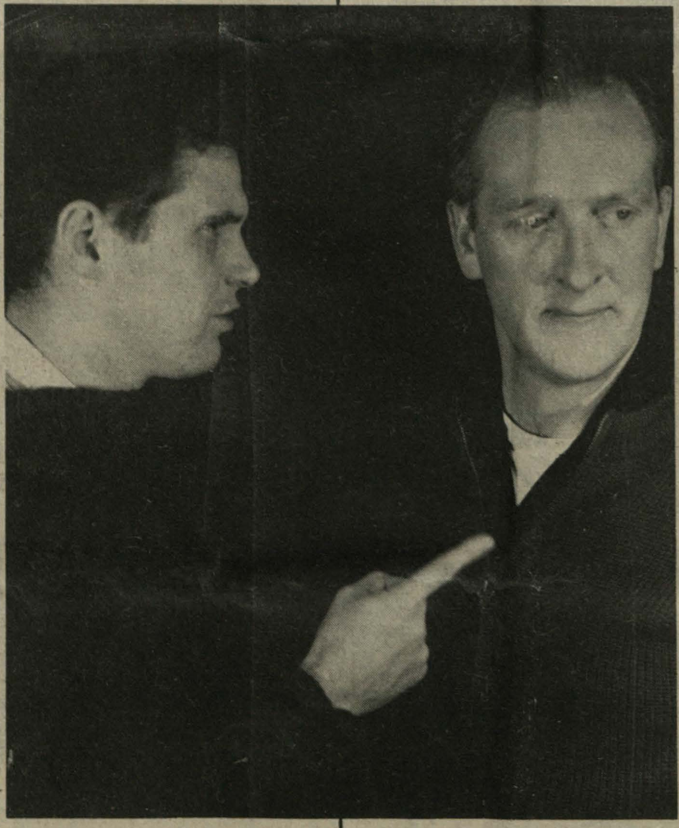
2. File all high school and college transcripts, if any, with the college.

3. Take admissions tests (or file with the college scores of ACT tests previously taken).

4. Meet counseling appointment (students will be notified of time and date by mail). Pay $7.50 student body fee at this time.

Arnold Edman, dean of counseling and guidance, said that two more dates remain for taking admission tests. They are at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, January 16, and 7 p.m. Wednesday, January 20. These tests will be given in the college auditorium at 51 E. Campbell Avenue.

In most institutions, there is a drop in enrollment in the spring semester; however, Dean Ziegler anticipates such a drop will be slight at West Valley, if at all. He predicts an increase in Extended Day enrollment.



TEACHERS IN PLAY--Campbell High School teachers Bill Harrison and Bob Bobbitt enact a scene from "Death of a Salesman." Harrison has been cast as "Happy" the salesman's son, and Bobbitt as "Charley" a neighbor. The play may be seen January 15, 16, 22, 23, 29 and 30 at the Saratoga City Council Chambers on Fruitvale Avenue near Allendale. Curtain time is 8:30.

City Hall briefs

Two councilmen (Dr. Edward Rogers and Ralph Doetsch) were absent from the City Council meeting Monday. But the quorum present spent a busy evening acting on matters ranging from park problems to calling for bids for police cars.

The Council--

1. APPROVED the appointment of Frank Kukuk to the Parks and Recreation Commission to replace Jack Kelly who resigned because of moving out of the city.

2. ALLOWED Jeffrey Smith, an accountant, located at Milton and Hamilton, to continue to operate his business at that location until June 1. The business is now in violation of the city's ordinance.

3. AGREED to pay for the cost of removing four trees at 226 Bland as requested by Helmut Meger, who agreed to replace the trees at his own cost. The present trees are now damaging the street, it was reported.

4. APPROVED the purchase of six barbecue units for Campbell park at $24.89 per unit as recommended by the Parks and Recreation Commission. The Council, however, suggested that the commission take another look at the type of park signs recommended.

5. APPROVED the calling for bids for four new police cars.

6. APPROVED the replacement of the Thermofax machines with Xerox copiers at the city hall. City Manager Bob Stephens estimated that the city would save money by the move.

7. ADOPTED a resolution honoring Craig Morton and Jack Schraub, local football stars who have gained national recognition.

8. APPROVED Mayor Charles Rose as a member and Bob McElroy as alternate as this city's representative on the county's Economic Opportunity Commission.

QUITO LITTLE LEAGUE

Sign ups for the Quito Little League and senior division for boys 8-15 years of age will take place on the next three Saturdays, January 16-23-30.

The sign-up will be held at Quito School, Quito Road at McCoy, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. A registration fee of $5 is required to cover insurance and boys must be accompanied by a parent.

On Friday, January 15, sixteen members of the Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan Hospital of Santa Clara Valley will meet to play bridge at the Patio Drive home of Mrs. Harry H. Leiter. These guests will launch the first in a series of "Vanishing Bridge" parties to aid in raising funds to meet the pledge made by the Auxiliary to the hospital.

These sixteen players, who will later be hostesses for bridge parties of their own, include Mmes. C.J. Shirley, Howard Christopher and Frank Neuterman of Campbell.

Tables for canasta will also be provided.

The bridge parties will continue through February, the winners to be announced at the annual meeting in April. Mmes. Yang Hu Tong and Lowell Besack are co-chairmen of the event. Further information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Tong, 269-5539, or Mrs. Besack, 248-5372.

Thieves take Chamber sign

The heavy rains last week didn't stop thieves from stealing a 2 by 3 foot sign with 7 foot posts attached from the Campbell Chamber of Commerce. Paul Landwehr, manager of the local Chamber, reported to Police the sign was just painted and was waiting to be installed to identify the Chamber's new location at 274 E.
